

The Massachusetts Gun Control Act takes effect on October 21, 1998.

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW

The new law has significantly changed the requirements regarding the purchase, possession, carrying, storage and licensing of firearms. This law also increases the criminal penalties for unlawful possession and use of firearms.

- Effective June 1, 1998, all new firearm license applicants must complete a certified firearms safety or hunter education course.
- Effective October 21, 1998, all firearms must be stored in a locked container or be equipped with an approved locking device.
- Effective October 21, 1998, the law imposes a ban on covert guns, unreliable guns (junk guns), and certain assault weapons.
- Effective October 21, 1998, the law establishes a new category of large capacity weapons and feeding devices. A weapon is large capacity if it is:
 - a semiautomatic handgun or rifle that is capable of accepting a feeding device that holds more than 10 rounds, or more than 5 shotgun shells (in the case of a shotgun).
